Euro area equities moved lower and government bond spreads widened, due to fresh political risk premia

- Euro area equities deteriorated in the past week, on account of intensified investors' concerns regarding the outcome of French Elections (June 30th and July 7th). Euro area bourses were down by -4.2% on a weekly basis, with the CAC40 index underperforming by a wide margin, down by -6.2% wow, the steepest weekly decline since early-March 2022 and with bank stocks leading the sell-off (-13%). On Monday, the CAC40 was posting signs of stabilization.
- On the other hand, US bourses rose to new record highs (S&P500: +1.6% wow) on the back of Alrelated single name deals & product launches (Apple – OpenAI, see page 3) and of restored confidence that interest rate cuts by the Federal Reserve are on the cards for H2:2024.
- The Fed stood pat for a seventh consecutive meeting, as expected (5.25% 5.5%) and acknowledged "modest" progress towards the inflation target of 2%, taking also into account the weaker-than-expected May's CPI. The latter came out at +3.3% yoy in May from +3.4% in April (see Economics).
- Policymakers reiterated that more evidence will be needed that inflation is sustainably moving towards 2% before cutting rates. The median "dot plot" for end-2024 moved up by 50 bps compared with three months ago to 5.1% suggesting -25 bps of cuts (instead of -75 bps) from current levels.
- Aided by restrictive monetary policy for longer in the course of 2024, the Fed maintains its central outlook that inflation will resume a convincing downward trend (+2.3% yoy by end 2025) and as a result, the median FOMC "dot plot" suggests four interest cuts to 4.0% 4.25% by end-2025.
- Note also that the US Producer Price Index (PPI) showed an easing in pipeline price pressures with the headline PPI down by -0.1 pp to +2.2% yoy versus consensus estimates for +2.5%. Overall, US 10-Year Treasury bond yields declined by -22 bps to 4.21% in the past week.
- German 10-Year Government bond yields decreased by -26 bps to 2.36% due to, inter alia, increased intra-euro area safe haven demand, while French bonds underperformed. Specifically, the 10-Year government bond yield increased in the past week by +2 bps to 3.14%, with the OAT-Bund spread widening by +28 bps to 78 bps (highest since November 2012, see graph page 3) as the French political uncertainty enhanced fiscal trajectory concerns.
- In the event, France ran a budget deficit of -5.5% of GDP in 2023, while estimates from the European Commission suggest a deficit of -5.3% of GDP in 2024 and -5.0% in 2025, leading the gross general government debt to 113.8% of GDP in 2025 from 110.6% in 2023 (see graph below).
- On top of political-induced volatility, the European Union (EU) decided to provisionally raise tariffs on Electric Vehicles (EV) imported from China, by percentages ranging from +17% to +38% (on top of a pre-existing rate of 10%) depending on the extent of compliance of each carmaker during an antisubsidy investigation launched by the EU back in September 2023.
- The move comes as the EU views the heavy subsidies provided by the Chinese State to its domestic EV producers as distorting the competition with EU carmakers. The new rates will be finalized on July 4th following negotiations with China, with the latter vowing to "take all necessary measures" to protect the Chinese automakers.

Fed macroeconomic projections were maintained stable for real GDP, while being revised up for inflation, particularly in the short term

- Recent GDP data have been roughly consistent with the Federal Reserve's outlook and as a result, the 19 participants in the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) left unchanged their respective projections compared with three months ago. Indeed, the median estimate for 2024 real GDP growth (Q4/Q4), was maintained at +2.1% yoy, at +2.0% yoy for both Q4:2025 and Q4:2026 and the long-term one at +1.8%.
- On the labor market, recent actual data have not significantly challenged March's FOMC projections and as a result, minor revisions took place in June for the unemployment rate (4.0% in May 2024). In the event, the median projection hovers between 4.0% and 4.2% across the projection horizon instead of 4.0% and 4.1% previously, with the long-term projection at 4.2% (instead of 4.1%).
- On inflation, the FOMC's outlook was revised up, especially in the short term, as actual data for PCE inflation have been higher than previously envisaged. Note that the annual growth of both the headline PCE Price Index and the core, held steady in April, at +2.7% yoy and +2.8% yoy, respectively, while the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland's Inflation Nowcasting model, points to both metrics coming out at +2.6% yoy in May as well as in June. In all, regarding the headline PCE inflation, the median projection for 2024 (Q4 average) was revised up by +0.2 pps to +2.6% yoy and for Q4:2025 by +0.1 pp to +2.3% yoy. However, headline inflation is still foreseen to align with the target by Q4:2026, with the respective estimate being maintained at +2.0% yoy (matching the - also unrevised - longer term projection), given also assumptions for restrictive monetary policy being maintained for longer. Similarly, the estimates for core PCE growth were revised up by +0.2 pps for Q4:2024 to +2.8% yoy, by +0.1 pp to +2.3% yoy for Q4:2025, while being left unchanged at +2.0% yoy for Q4:2026.
- The macroeconomic outlook is conditioned on the Fed proceeding with a higher path for the Federal Funds Rate compared with the one in March's projections. In the event, the median of FOMC participants' respective assumptions came out at 5.1% by end-2024 instead of 4.6%, suggesting -25 bps of cuts (instead of -75 bps) to a target range of 5.0% 5.25%. The respective FOMC median moved up to 4.1% in end-2025 (instead of 3.9%), was maintained at 3.1% in end-2026, while being revised up to 2.8% (instead of 2.6%) in the longer-run.

US CPI inflation was below expectations in May

• Headline US CPI inflation decelerated by -0.1 pp to +3.3% yoy in May (peak of +9.1% yoy in June 2022, the highest since November 1981), below consensus for +3.4% yoy. In seasonally adjusted "sa" terms, the headline index was roughly unchanged, the lowest reading since July 2022 (consensus: +0.1% mom), after a +0.3% mom in April. Energy prices (weight: 7%) fell by -2.0% mom sa, mainly due to a -3.6% mom for the volatile gasoline component. Still, positive base effects (-3.0% mom in May 2023), resulted in the annual growth accelerating by +1.1 pp to +3.7%. At the same time, Food prices (14% weight) recorded a modest +0.1% mom (20-year average of +0.2% mom), with the annual pace of growth decelerating slightly, by -0.1 pp to +2.1% (peak of +11.4% in August 2022).

- Importantly, the annual growth of core CPI (79% weight) decelerated by -0.2 pps in May, to a 3-year low of +3.4% (peak of +6.6% yoy in September 2022), below expectations for +3.5%. The monthly growth of core CPI was +0.2% mom, the lowest since August 2021 (consensus: +0.3% mom), after a +0.3% mom in April, roughly in line with its 20-year average. Meanwhile, the predominantly determined by domestic economic developments, shelter prices (which constitute c. 1/3 of the headline CPI and c. 45% of the core index), were up by +0.4% mom sa for a 4th consecutive month (12-month average of +0.4% | 20-year average of +0.25%). Regarding the two major and relatively stickier shelter components, the index for the rent of primary residence came out at +0.4% mom for a 3rd consecutive month (the annual growth was +5.3% from +5.4%) and the owners' equivalent rent of residences (i.e. the implicit rent that owner occupants would have to pay if they were renting their homes), at +0.4% mom for a 4th consecutive month in May (the annual growth was +5.7% from +5.8%). In all, excluding the dominant shelter component as well as the volatile one for used cars & trucks, core CPI fell by -0.1% mom (+2.5% yoy) from +0.3% mom (+2.6% yoy) in April (12-month average of +0.2% mom).
- Looking forward, the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland's Inflation Nowcasting model, points to a modest deceleration in June for the annual growth of the headline CPI to +3.2% (monthly gains of +0.1%) and a moderate acceleration for the respective core inflation's pace to +3.5% (monthly gains of +0.3%).

UK GDP is set to continue rising in Q2:2024, despite growth entering the quarter flat

According to the monthly estimate from the UK Office for National Statistics, real GDP was roughly unchanged on a monthly basis in April, from +0.4% mom in March, in line with consensus estimates. A growth of +0.2% mom for the dominant services sector (79% of GDP), offset a -0.9% mom for production output (in turn due to a -1.4% mom for the manufacturing industry) and a -1.4% mom for construction. Recall that GDP posted strong growth of +0.6% gog (+0.2% yoy) in Q1:2024, which followed a roughly stagnant GDP since early-2022 (the Q4:2023 level stood -0.1% below the respective one in Q1:2022). In Q2:2024, GDP is expected to increase for a 2nd consecutive quarter, albeit in a big part due to positive carryover effects (if monthly growth remains at zero throughout the quarter, the Q2:2024 quarterly pace will come out at +0.4%). On the momentum, according to the UK National Institute of Economic and Social Research, real GDP is estimated to have risen by +0.1% mom in May, followed by +0.2% mom in June. Such performances would lead to a rise of +0.5% gog (+0.7% yoy) overall in Q2:2024. Note that the latest (May 9th) estimates from the Bank of England called for +0.4% qoq in Q1:2024 and +0.2% qoq in Q2:2024.

Equities

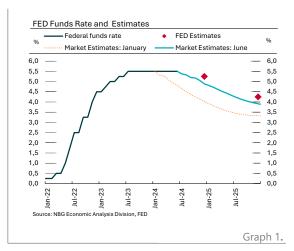

- Global equity markets were mixed in the past week (MSCI ACWI: +0.4% wow). The S&P500 rose by +1.6% wow (+14% ytd) at fresh record highs. Information Technology led the increase (+6.4% wow), with investors welcoming deals announcements (Oracle, the stock of which, surged by +9.7% wow, reached cloud services deals with Google and Microsoft-backed OpenAI) and the unveiling of AI software by Apple Inc. The latter also announced a partnership with OpenAI to integrate ChatGPT into its customer experience. In all, Apple's stock price surged by +7.9% in the past week, with its market capitalization of $3.26 tn closing in on Microsoft's (+4.4% wow) $3.29 tn, at the first place worldwide, slightly above Nvidia's $3.24 tn (+9.1% wow).
- On the other side of the Atlantic, both the EuroStoxx and the pan-European Stoxx600 were down on a weekly basis, -4.2% (+5% ytd) & -2.4% (+7% ytd), respectively, with the CAC 40 in France underperforming (-6.2% wow | -1% ytd), on account of political uncertainty. EuroStoxx Banks fell by -8.1% wow, led by France-based ones, as BNP Paribas was down by -12.0% wow, Credit Agricole by -11.0% wow and Societe Generale by -14.9% wow. A stabilization was taking place on Monday June 17th.

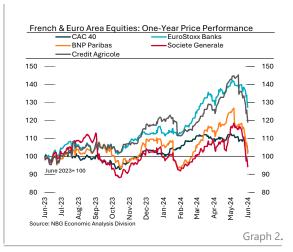

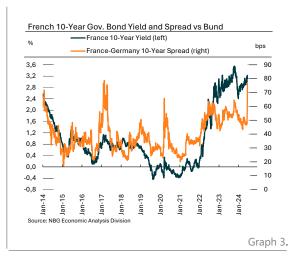

- US Treasury bond yields were significantly down in the past week, following lower than expected inflation-related data (CPI, PPI). The 10-year yield fell by -22 bps wow to 4.21% and its 2-year peer by -19 bps to 4.69%, both at 2½-month lows. In Germany, the 10-year Bund yield fell by -26 bps on a weekly basis to a 2½-month low 2.36%. At the same time, in France, political uncertainty combined with concerns regarding the country's fiscal path, led the 10-year government bond spread over its German peer, up by +28 bps wow to 78 bps. Bond spreads were also significantly up in Italy (+22 bps wow to 157 bps), Spain (+20 bps wow to 98 bps), Portugal (+19 bps wow to 80 bps) and Greece (+26 bps wow to 131 bps). On Monday June 17th French bonds were treading water.
- Euro-denominated high yield corporate bond spreads widened sharply in the past week, as political uncertainty weighed on risk appetite (+42 bps to 355 bps | USD: +14 bps wow to 329 bps). In the investment grade spectrum, both EUR and USD spreads were up, +14 bps wow to 120 bps and +5 bps to 95 bps, respectively. Recall that issuance of debt securities in the euro area by non-financial corporations remains strong so far in 2024. Specifically, gross issuance of securities with a maturity above 1 year, stood at €144.6 bn cumulatively from January to May 2024 (€28.2 bn net) compared with €106.1 bn (€13.7 bn net) in the same period in 2023.

FX and Commodities

• The euro lost ground in the past week, with political uncertainty in France weighing, -1.2% wow against the US Dollar to an 1½-month low of $1.069. In commodities, oil prices rose in the past week (Brent: +3.8% wow to $82.6 | WTI: +3.8% wow to $79.4/barrel), after hitting 4-month lows, as pockets of oversupply concerns eased. Although the respective outlook varies between prominent organizations (IEA, OPEC, EIA), investors in the past week took note of the US Energy Information Administration revising up by +0.2 million barrels per day ("bpd") to 103 mn bpd its forecast for average global oil demand in 2024, while revising down its respective estimate for global supply, by -0.2 mn bpd to 102.6 bpd.

Quote of the week: "The level of uncertainty is huge. That's why, when you are in a dark room, you have to be very careful. You have to... move very slowly, to move with a lot of prudence.", Vice-President of the European Central Bank, Luis de Guindos, June 12th 2024

Economic Calendar

In the US, a plethora of data, regarding private consumption, industrial production and the housing market, will provide a fresh view on the momentum of economic activity. At the same time, the updated 10-year outlook of the Congressional Budget Office for the US federal budget will be monitored, given the disconcerting US fiscal dynamics.

In euro area, attention turns to June's consumer confidence and PMIs for a better assessment of the impetus of economic activity.

Finally, the Bank of England (BoE) meets. Although the view that the BoE is gradually edging closer to commencing a rate reduction cycle remains in place, consensus leans towards the first cut not coming as soon as at the upcoming meeting (Bank Rate: 5.25%).
